Police charge local man for alleged robbery attempt

STAFF REPORT

Police say a Marion man tried at knife-point to rob a couple walking on Depot Street Friday night then threatened another man and woman in Salem the following evening after authorities had cornered him at their house.

Ronald Joseph Shaw, 26, who investigators say was residing at 723 East Depot St., is charged with first-degree robbery, first-degree wanton endangerment and fleeing or evading police in Crittenden County and in Livingston County, he faces two charges of unlawful imprisonment, second-degree burglary, resisting arrest, violation of an emergency protective order and assaulting a police officer.

Marion Police Chief Ray O'Neal said Shaw's trouble started in Marion where he pulled a knife on a couple walking along East Depot Street near the railroad tracks at about 10:30 p.m. Friday.

"He told the man he wanted all his money and the man told him he didn't have any," O'Neal said. "Then, he told them things were going to get bad if the man didn't give him his money."

O'Neal said the two victims took off running to a nearby house where they banged on the door and told the alleged robber that police were on their way.

Marion Police are investigating the discovery of a partially defaced handgun found under an ornamental bush at a downtown residence. See the complete story on Page 4.

"(Shaw) stood there for a while then ran off," O'Neal said.

Chief O'Neal said the victims did not know the alleged robber, but through a description, police were able to determine who he was and where he was living.

Patrolman Jerry Parker, Lt. Marty Hodge, Deputy Greg Rushing, Special Deputy Paul Beard and Constable Billy Arflack all converged on a Depot Street home where they believed Shaw was staying. When officers pulled up out front, Shaw fled out the back door and despite efforts to find him throughout the night, police were not able to locate the suspect.

Shaw turned up the next day in Livingston County

On Sept. 20, 2013, veterans across the country will join in a day of remembrance as part of National POW/MIA Recognition Day. Held each year on the third Friday in September, the observance focuses on the need to account for those still missing in action and brings attention to the sacrifices soldiers and their families make each day in service to their country.

William Clarke, quartermaster at VFW Post 12022 in Marion and a veteran of World War

II, understands the importance of reaching out to veterans returning home from the battlefield. He said post officials encourage veterans from the Persian Gulf War, the Iraq War and the War in Afghanistan to join VFW members at their regular monthly meetings. The meetings are held on the second Thursday of each month at post headquarters located on 412 N. College St. in Marion.

A native of Evansville, Ind., Clarke is authoring his recollections of World War II. He shrugs off the idea of looking for a publisher and insists he's writing for a special audience—his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. He wants them to have a personal account of his wartime experience.

Drafted into the military in January 1943, Clarke gathered intelligence as part of an anti-aircraft mobile battery attached to the VIII Corps of the U.S. Army. He assisted in the collection, evaluation and distribution of information from the Axis powers and counter-intelligence activities. He also collected and evaluated enemy information secured by intelligence and reconnaissance

CCES educator earns grant from national program

By JASON TRAVIS

STAFF WRITER

A local educator has received national recognition for implementing a teaching program that uses new techniques and methods to help improve student learning. Ruth McClure, a special education teacher at Crittenden County Elementary School, was one of 100 nationwide finalists to receive a $2,000 grant as part of the annual ING Unsung Heroes Awards Program.

Each year, ING Unsung Heroes Awards program grants are awarded to kindergarten through 12th-grade educators who bring new and innovative teaching practices into the classroom. This year, the program received 1,300 applications nationwide. In the coming weeks, three of the 100 finalists, which includes McClure, will be selected to receive an additional $5,000, $10,000 or $25,000 in grant money.

McClure, a Princeton resident, was recognized for the My SPACE (Sensory Processing and Calming Environment) program. McClure said the My SPACE program will involve setting up a designated classroom later this fall that offers specially-designed instruction for students who need help in developing motor planning and self-regulation skills. The program will also help students to organize their thought processes.

McClure said the program is individualized and will allow students to select certain activities designed to calm nerves or stimulate them, depending on the student's needs.

"If you need quiet (time) or need to move, it's a way to meet your body's needs so that you can go back in class, refocus and be able to receive information and give information," she said. "Sometimes you feel jittery and nervous and sometimes you feel too laid back and need stimulation."

A trained member of the staff will supervise students in the room at all times, helping select from a variety of activities. McClure said the time will be scheduled so students will not miss valuable instruction in their classroom.

McClure applied for the grant last April and learned about the award last month. While she's very happy to receive the award, she is grateful the students are the ones who will benefit from the program.

CCES Principal Melissa Tabor also expressed her gratitude about the program and the students it will benefit.

"I'm very excited that it has opened up an opportunity for us to provide more services to children's special needs," Tabor said.

Crittenden's state legislative districts remain virtually unchanged

FROM STAFF AND AP REPORTS

Boundaries for Kentucky House and Senate districts were redrawn last week during a special session of the Legislature with overwhelming bipartisan support in both chambers. The changes, which took effect immediately with Gov. Steve Beshear's signature on Friday, have very little effect on the make-up of legislative districts in which Crittenden County lies.

House District 4 will retain Crittenden, Livingston and Caldwell counties, but will shift seven precincts from eastern McCracken County to eight Christian County precincts. Senate District 4 remains unchanged. It is comprised of Crittenden, Livingston, Caldwell, Union, Webster and Henderson counties. That means Rep. Lynn Bechler (R-Marion) and Sen. Dorsey Ridley (D-Henderson) will continue to represent Crittenden County in Frankfort.

"I'm absolutely pleased," Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newcom said of the redistricting outcome, adding that moving for-Redistricting completed by the Kentucky General Assembly last week leaves the legislative districts containing Crittenden County virtually unchanged. Senate District 4 will be comprised of the same six counties. Meantime, House District 4 retains Crittenden, Livingston and Caldwell counties and shifts several precincts from eastern McCracken County to Christian County.

Redistricting wrapped up in mostly bipartisan manner

Due to normal population shifts, the state House and Senate are required every 10 years to take up the task of redistricting based on population data compiled by the U.S. Census Bureau. After nearly 18 months, one lawsuit, one plan that the courts declared unconstitutional and an attempt to redraw the boundaries of the state's 100 House Districts during this year's regular session, the Kentucky House of Representatives and the Senate finally passed a redistricting plan last week.

Given all the history of redistricting stretching back to the Kentucky Supreme Court's decision to throw out the plan that was developed in 2012, it was refreshing that the General Assembly could come together and forge a plan that for the most part passed along bipartisan lines.

The plan was approved in the House by a vote of 79-18, and I was one of the 79 representatives voting for the plan. The 18 no votes were cast primarily by members in larger population areas who felt that the plan split counties in an arbitrary way, carving up those counties in an unacceptable manner, and that new legislative seats should have been added in their regions.

House District 4, fortunately, remained largely unchanged. All of Caldwell, Crittenden and Livingston counties remain in the district. Eight precincts in Christian County, however, have replaced the seven precincts in McCracken County. While the district will be one of the larger districts by area, it is one of the smaller districts by population. I am excited to have the opportunity to represent the folks in Christian County, and I am looking forward to getting to know them. I am also pleased that I can continue to represent the fine people in McCracken County who have been in the 4th District for the past 12 years.

From a political perspective, the new plan in the House pits four incumbent Democrats and four incumbent Republicans against each other next fall if all 100 representatives decide to stand for re-election. It also creates four new districts. Of the 100 districts, 76 (including District 4) have a majority Democrat registration and 24 have a majority Republican registration.

The plan divides 24 counties into multiple House districts and the House majority leaders say the plan meets the constitutionally required "one person, one vote" standard. The legislation as passed and signed into law by the governor includes language that makes the newly created House and Senate districts effective immediately. That language—made necessary by recent federal judicial action—was added to accommodate any special election that may be called to fill an unexpired state legislative term should a seat become vacant for any reason.

Redistricting is inherently political, and while the new districts are not what every lawmaker would like, I believe they meet the constitutional requirements with which we legislators are charged. I hope that the courts see it the same way.

On another matter, however, I am sad to report that a sitting member of the Kentucky House of Representatives has had sexual harassment complaints brought against him. These charges were brought to the attention of members on the floor of the House this past week, which was the first time I heard of them. Sexual harassment has no place in our society, and elected officials must not be held to a lesser standard than anyone else. Despite the allegations, though, we need to withhold judgment until the matter has been thoroughly investigated and all the facts are in.

As always, I look forward to hearing from you; your input is most welcome. I can be reached through the toll-free message line in Frankfort at (800) 372-7181, directly at (502) 564-8100, extension 665, or by visiting the Kentucky Legislature's website at www.lrc.ky.gov and clicking on the "E-mail Your Legislator" link.

It remains my honor to serve you.

(Rep. Lynn Bechler (R-Marion) is a first-term lawmaker, representing Crittenden, Livingston, Caldwell and a portion of Christian County in the Kentucky House of Representatives.)

Schools moving forward on several fronts

The Crittenden County School District continues to make progress, exercise efficiencies and maintain improvement for the student learning experience. As you know, there is always that dynamic tension between economic resources and continued accountability for student learning. Each of the six years as your superintendent of schools, the resources side of that equation has dwindled more and more but the high stakes accountability for student learning and continued expectations for improvement have continued to increase. We understand this situation and have certainly maintained a commitment to continuous improvement while being focused on resource efficiency. Let me share some of the progress thus far on a few 2013-14 district and school improvement initiatives.

out this school year as well.

We have invited the Kentucky Center for Safe Schools to conduct a safety assessment for our middle and high school campuses on Sept. 26. Each of these schools will be required to survey student and parent feedback on safety-related concerns and questions as a part of this assessment. We look forward to the feedback from this assessment to better strengthen our safety measures in the district.

Propane bus pilot

We started this school year as the first school district in the Commonwealth of Kentucky to be granted the opportunity to pilot a propane-fueled school bus to transport students. Our district has garnered national attention for this effort as we were mentioned in a recent USA Today online article (Aug. 11, 2013) titled: "School Buses Go Green with Eco-friendly Propane Fuel."

Our efforts to obtain a Kentucky Clean Diesel Fuels Grant enabled us to help offset the cost for the purchase of the bus while also updating our vehicle exhaust systems to more "clean" burning mechanics.

CCES construction

We planned the renovation/addition construction project for Crittenden County Elementary School in response to a growing enrollment at our elementary school and the need for a long term solution. As many of you have experienced firsthand, the construction process is moving forward and progressing at a good rate.

The funding source for all construction projects is tapped from a totally restricted fund allocated from the Kentucky Department of Education solely for the purpose of providing bonding capacity to local school districts for capital improvements. No local revenue sources have been utilized in this construction project.

We are excited about seeing this project to its completion by the end of this semester, hopefully! Thanks for your patience and flexibility when arriving or departing the CCES campus during this time.

Digital conversion plan

Our district has been conducting research and site visits over the past couple of years to plan for a transition into a more digitized learning environment for students. We first had to enhance the wireless infrastructure to the middle and high school campuses—accomplished summer 2013. Then we had to get our teachers trained on how to manage student learning in a digital classroom environment—an ongoing training effort.

We are now at the phase of requiring each middle and high school student to complete online training known as a digital driver's license. The digital driver's license is a step for our students to understand how to appropriately utilize technology in the learning environment.

Thanks for your support of these efforts focused on continuous improvement. I did not even mention our aviation/aerospace project at CCHS. I will save it for the next Super News!

WKYC celebrates 50th anniversary

To the editor

How do you know when you have been a part of a legacy? What makes a past purpose truly mean something to those in the present? On a more important note, what makes a legacy remain for future generations?

Aug. 17 was a truly special day for Western Kentucky Youth Camp (WKYC) in Sheridan. Friends of WKYC celebrated the 50th year of its existence in an all-day celebration.

At 8 a.m., the day's events were kicked off with running shoes through the trails and old wagon roads of the campsite. With this came the 5K race that has since been coined the "Mad Myrtle Mud Run" due to the torrential downpour that began shortly after its commencement. After this was the Family Fun Run, where both young and young at heart joined in the excitement.

At 10 a.m., the event switched gears from a run to a walk down memory lane. Some of the founders of the camp were invited to relive their legacy by addressing the audience. The land donor, Frances Beard, was among the speakers during the special program.

She related how a young Marion High School teacher inherited her family's Sheridan farm and, in turn, together with her late husband Floyd signed it over to WKYC. Doug Brown of Henderson, Tenn., Walter Edwards of Hopkinsville and Roy Lee and Stephen Rogers, both of Evansville, Ind., reminisced about the hard work and dedication it took to begin the camp. They also brought laughter to the audience with the humorous stories of camping in the 1960s.

These founders still believe in what WKYC stands for: the shaping and molding of the young people of Crittenden County and beyond. The reach of this camp has traveled through generations and geographically, serving campers from surrounding counties, states and even countries.

A legacy is simply an inheritance for the privileged. An inheritance can be squandered or invested. It takes the very vision that planted the seed for its produce to be realized in the future.

To see how the camp is growing, and to find out how you can be involved in future events, visit www.wkyc.org.

Report: Welfare pays better than work

It may not come as a shock to some, but in the welfare-versus-work battle, welfare seems to be winning. In fact, in more than two-thirds of these United States, it pays better to be on the dole than to hold a minimum wage job.

Not much motivation to get up out of bed and go look for that job tomorrow, huh?

According to a study by the Cato Institute, a self-professed libertarian think tank, welfare programs in 35 states pay better than an average entry-level job for unskilled labor.

If you think Kentucky is one such welfare state, well, you'd be wrong. Actually, our state is one of 15 whose welfare benefits rate below the national minimum wage of $7.25 per hour—$6.42 per hour to be exact. Idaho is the most tight-fisted state, paying benefits equal to only $5.36 per hour.

Meantime, flying off the other end of the scale is Hawaii, where entitlements pay best in the nation at an equivalent of almost $30 per hour—quite a ransom for living off public assistance.

Obviously, it costs a lot to live in paradise.

But the Aloha State is not alone in doling out what seems an excessive amount for being down and out. Eleven other states and the District of Columbia actually pay those on the welfare roll at a rate more than twice the minimum wage.

"The current welfare system provides such a high level of benefits that it acts as a disincentive for work," the executive summary of "The Work Versus Welfare Trade-off 2013" Cato report reads.

True enough. What motivation is there to work a 40-hour week on the lowest rung of the employment ladder when you can do twice as well doing nothing? Very little for those completely satisfied with eating at the public feeding trough until someone forces them to step away.

Anyone can fall upon hard times, for sure. But it's because of those not content with a handout that the system needs an overhaul.

I cannot pretend to have the solution for welfare reform, but handing out more than one can make by working over the long-term certainly isn't the answer.

Proving it's never too early to learn about the importance of recycling, preschool teacher Angel McDonald teaches Tate Stump (center) and Gunner Topp, both 4, about the new Crittenden County Elementary School initiative to recycle used or empty magic markers.

Recycling program helps make preschoolers eco-conscious

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

Crittenden County Elementary preschool teacher Angel McDonald wants to encourage students and adults to help save the planet, one magic marker at a time. The elementary school is joining other schools across the country by implementing Color Cycle, a Crayola marker recycling program.

McDonald said her young students are learning to collect used markers to be placed in a recycling bin. The markers will then be sent to a conversion facility where they will be transformed into clean-burning fuel.

"I just thought it was a wonderful project. This summer I sent an e-mail to all of the teachers," McDonald said. "My husband is in the process of making a blue (container) for recycling. Everybody knows about it. They are already saving their markers."

The program teaches the importance of eco-friendly practices. McDonald said specially-developed standards-based lesson plans will also be incorporated into student instruction to help encourage and promote good recycling habits.

This isn't the first recycling project for the elementary school. For the past four years, an Elmer's Glue collection bin helps remind students to recycle empty glue sticks and bottles. Used ink cartridges are also recycled at the elementary school.

McDonald said it's important to teach recycling efforts at a young age so students can form good habits as they mature.

"I want them to know that it is their responsibility to take care of the earth," she said, citing the flowers her students planted in the spring. "All of those things tie in to becoming a productive member of society."

units. He performed these duties while serving in France, Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany.

Before arriving in Europe, Clarke completed basic training in Camp Haan, Calif. He then spent the summer training on the dry lakes of the Mojave Desert before receiving more training in Oregon.

In January 1944, after spending 10 days in an Army transport boat, Clarke arrived in Scotland. He would complete six more months of training overseas.

"When I landed in Glasgow, it was midnight. There were no lights. Everything was blacked out," Clarke said. "To get off the troop vessel we had to grab the backpack in front of us. So we went single file."

"They don't tell you on the boat where you're going. You wait until you get there to find out."

He then boarded a troop train that would take him to South Wales, a coal mining region located in the southwest part of the United Kingdom. Clarke recalls the different dialects spoken by the locals. He also remembers thatched rooftops on huts.

"That was like stepping back into the real old times. Everything was not up-to-date like we were in 1944," he said. "It was like stepping back 100 years to me."

Clarke remembers the rain that postponed D-Day until June 6, 1944. He had just celebrated his birthday on June 4. By the end of June 1944, Clarke encountered enemy fire after crossing the English Channel from South Hampton to Normandy, France.

"We were lying in our foxholes on Utah Beach waiting to be positioned. We could hear the heavy artillery. They were shooting at the beach," he said. "You could hear them miles away. When they hit a dud you could hear it skip the ground, like a rock on water."

Clarke said the VIII Corps fought for several weeks in the Battle for Brest, a port the Allies fought to control in northwestern France. It was one of the most intense battles fought on the Western Front. After the Battle for Brest, the VIII Corps fought its way across Europe toward Czechoslovakia.

Despite the constant threat from enemy fire from the ground and air, Clarke said his most vivid memory of his experience in World War II was the day he was discharged from the Army. It was January 1946 when a late night train ride would return him to Evansville.

"I landed in Evansville about 2:30 in the morning. I was the only one that got off that coach. There wasn't anything moving. It was quiet as a mouse," he recalls. "I picked up a telephone and called a yellow cab. It came by and took me home. I knocked and my mom opened the door."

After the war, Clarke returned to his job as a draftsman and then worked in research as an air-conditioning lab technician at Servel Corp. in Evansville until it closed in the mid-1950s.

"I'm a self-made engineer. I don't have a degree, but I took several college courses in Evansville," he said. "I've designed air-conditioner equipment, manufactured homes and HUD housing."

A widower, Clarke spends time with his children and grandchildren. He also enjoys the friendships and camaraderie with other veterans at the VFW post.

NEWS BRIEFS

False alarm tests police for bank heist

A false alarm from The Peoples Bank in Marion last Thursday turned out to be a pretty good exercise for local response to such a threat. Police Chief Ray O'Neal said, fortunately, it wasn't the real thing. However, officers didn't know until they arrived with full tactical gear that the purported robber was actually a man going to the gun shop on Main Street.

O'Neal said a bank employee who was walking on East Carlisle Street saw a man with a handgun and believed he had gone into The Peoples Bank. He phoned police who responded immediately, blocking off Main Street and setting up a perimeter around the bank.

O'Neal said that once the situation was settled, he became concerned after reflecting upon how pedestrians and shop owners reacted.

"There were people coming outside and walking down the sidewalk when we were telling them to get off the streets," the chief said.

O'Neal said that in a real robbery those people—mostly curiosity seekers—could be in serious jeopardy, especially if gunfire erupted.

Police take custody of dogs after attack

Police took custody of three dogs and were still holding them at the Crittenden County Animal Shelter on Tuesday following an attack by at least one of the dogs last week on Brook Street in Marion.

Marion Police Chief Ray O'Neal said Patty Franklin of Brook Street was bitten on the leg last Thursday by a pit bull at her neighbor's house. The animal belongs to Christina M. Moore, but she has not been charged with any crime. The dog owner was not at home when the incident took place.

O'Neal said the case remains under investigation.

The dog apparently attacked Franklin when she opened the door at the dog owner's house. O'Neal said she had gone there to notify the owner about a second dog which had possibly gotten off its chain and was roaming freely outside.

Police spent more than an hour rounding up the dogs. Since someone was bitten by one of the dogs, all of them were taken to the animal shelter pending a check on their registration and vaccination records, the chief said.

Street legal

On Tuesday, Crittenden County Sheriff Wayne Agent and Deputy Mandi Harrison inspected Marion's first street-legal golf cart, which belongs to Marion Tourism Commission for use in watering the city's flower planters in the downtown area. A City of Marion ordinance passed last week allows for the restricted use of golf carts on designated city streets during daylight hours. To qualify for use on streets, the vehicles must be outfitted with certain safety equipment and be inspected by the sheriff's department to ensure the mandates of the ordinance are met. The one-time inspection fee is $5. An annual $25 permit to operate on city streets must be obtained at Marion City Hall. A copy of the ordinance listing the requirements for and restrictions of use of golf carts on public roadways can be also picked up at city hall. A sheriff's inspection checklist can be obtained at the sheriff's office in the courthouse.

DISTRICTS

ward projects like the relocation of U.S. 641 will benefit from the continuity in representation and district make-up.

The new legislative boundaries across the state—100 House districts and 38 Senate districts—appear to be free of any overt attempts at partisan one-upmanship, potentially ending nearly two years of wrangling by lawmakers over how to redraw the maps. The House had voted 79-18 Friday morning to approve the redistricting bill soon after the Senate had passed it 35-2, reflecting broad support from both parties.

"It was refreshing that the General Assembly could come together and forge a plan that for the most part passed along bipartisan lines," Rep. Bechler said in his legislative update this week.

Sen. Ridley commended Gov. Beshear for calling lawmakers back to Frankfort to complete redistricting before the 2014 Regular Session of the General Assembly. He also praised Republican leadership in the Senate, particularly Senate President Robert Stivers, for keeping partisanship out of reapportionment as best as possible.

"Redistricting is always a complex, difficult process but I am pleased with the entire outcome for the state Senate," Ridley said.

The latest measure would redraw House boundaries in a way that would put four Democrats and four Republicans in the same districts.

The Senate proposal would pit no incumbents against each other.

Three federal judges overseeing the Legislature's efforts will have final say on the constitutionality of the House and Senate districts.

"I expect these maps will withstand legal scrutiny, so all Kentuckians can be assured of appropriate representation in the General Assembly," Beshear said in a statement.

Authorities investigate gun found under bush

STAFF REPORT

Marion Police are investigating the discovery of a partially defaced handgun found under an ornamental bush at the corner of East Bellville and North College streets.

The High Point 9mm semi-automatic weapon was found last Wednesday after someone walking along the sidewalk saw it and told a city employee about the discovery.

Marion Police Chief Ray O'Neal said the gun's magazine was fully loaded, but a round was not chambered. O'Neal said the weapon's serial number had been partially filed away, creating even greater concern.

O'Neal said the gun did not appear to have been there for a long time. However, the person who initially saw it waited about 24 hours before telling anyone about it. The gun was found in the shadows of a crape myrtle bush, O'Neal said, but readily seen from the sidewalk. He thinks it may have been tossed into the bush from a passing vehicle.

count for population changes recorded by the Census Bureau. Kentucky had major population shifts between 2000 and 2010, requiring reconfiguration of legislative districts in both the House and Senate to comply with the federal and state "one person, one vote" mandate.

The state's overall population rose from 4 million to 4.3 million, and shifted largely from rural communities in the west and east to urban areas in north-central Kentucky.

As whitetail hunting season approaches, it's a great time to use your trail cameras. If possible, try to use two to four cameras for every 100 acres. Make sure your time and date stamp is working properly before deploying your cameras. The information that such data provide will be very beneficial when planning your hunts. Select to hang your cameras in areas you seldom have an opportunity to scout through other means. This will enable you to know what's moving through the most remote reaches of your farm. Place a camera and then avoid the area for several days before retrieving photos. It is always best to limit human traffic in your hunting area as much as possible in the days and weeks leading up to hunting season.

where he allegedly violated and EPO by making contact with a woman living in Salem. Livingston authorities were already looking for him on the EPO violation when they learned about the warrant issued in Marion the night before. A K-9 unit from McCracken County was called in to aid in the search, but it was a tip from a Salem resident that led police to a home on South Hayden Street where they thought Shaw was hiding.

There, Livingston County Detective Devin Brewer said Shaw brandished a knife, holding an adult man and woman in the house against their will and warning them to not go to the door when police arrived.

Four officers from the Livingston County Sheriff's Department and a state trooper went to the house and made entry. Brewer said Shaw continued to resist arrest but was arrested after a brief struggle with police.

He is jailed at the Crittenden County Detention Center on a $5,000 bond for the Crittenden charges and $5,000 on the Livingston charges.

Mineral waters allure of Crittenden Springs Resort

Mineral springs are naturally occurring springs that produce water containing minerals or other dissolved substances that alter its taste or give it a purported therapeutic value. Salts, sulphur, compounds and gases are among the substances that can be dissolved in the spring water during its passage underground.

Mineral water obtained from mineral springs has long been an important commercial proposition. Mineral spas or resorts have developed around mineral springs, where patrons would retire to "take in the waters," meaning they would drink or bathe in the mineral water.

The water from these springs would appear either yellow-brownish or milky and emit a strong smell of rotten eggs. The minerals in these waters were supposed to have a positive therapeutic effect on skin disease, women's diseases, asthma, neuralgia, rheumatism and other body aches and pains. Also limited oral intake could improve conditions such as constipation and diabetes.

Historical mineral springs were often outfitted with elaborate stone works, including retaining walls, gazebos or pagodas. Others were entirely enclosed within spring houses.

During the Victorian Era, mineral springs spas and resorts grew across the country. They were early vacation spots and an excuse to have fun and mix with other patrons staying at the hotels. Such an adventure had much allure in the days before any audiovisual entertainment, aside from a live orchestra.

With these thoughts and plans in mind, several of Marion's prominent businessmen gathered together and created the plans for the Crittenden Sulphur Spring Hotel.

Crittenden County had its share of popular mineral springs in the late 1880s and early 1900s, but only one that was widely known for its beautiful accommodations, extravagant dinners, parties and festive balls.

The new mineral springs resort hotel was built and ready to be opened to the public in 1887. The Crittenden Springs Hotel was known as one of the finest in the western and southern country. Its location was on a hillside among native Kentucky trees by the water of Hurricane Creek. It was a three-story gingerbread trimmed building with 125 rooms and thoroughly equipped with all modern improvements and handsomely furnished throughout.

The large hotel held various storerooms, pantries, servants' quarters, a linen room and a lamp room in addition to the guest rooms, dining room, large lobby and spacious ballroom. Also available for the guests' pleasure was a billiard room, 10-pin alley and outside games such as croquet and lawn tennis.

The mineral spring was located at the foot of the hill near Hurricane Creek. Perhaps not as elaborate as some, but a convenient and picturesque wooden walkway, or boardwalk, was built from the hotel down to the gazebo that covered the spring so it would be easier and more comfortable walking up and down from the hotel to the spring.

The hotel was provided with electric bells throughout and a system of its own waterworks owned by the management. There were ample facilities for hot and cold fresh water or sulphur baths.

The register in the hotel lobby listed names from California to Maine and many places in between. Prominent families of Louisville who had interests in the nearby mines vacationed at the resort. Many families of Marion also vacationed there. Cottages were rented and the housewife packed up household equipment and spent the summer at the springs while the men of the family commuted to Marion by horse and buggy each day.

The popular watering place could be reached from Marion by traveling over a dirt road in horse-drawn buggies and carriages. Marion livery stables, which flourished during this era, had available horses and carriages for hire. As the daily trains arrived, a line of carriages was on hand to transport guests to the springs resort. Local guests desiring to bring their own teams would find good stables, grooms and a livery stable with the best saddle and harness horses around.

Entertainment during the plush years featured orchestras and bands from St. Louis and other nearby cities. Guests were entertained during the season with beautiful balls, costume parties, outdoor sports, including croquet matches, barbecues and watermelon feasts.

Another favorite pastime for the older women was the daily rocking chair brigade on the covered porches encircling the hotel. These shady porches provided a pleasant place for watching and gossiping as guests dressed in silks and satins promenaded along the boardwalks to the springhouse to drink of the health-giving waters and exchange resort news.

A "Toothsome Menu" of the hotel featured all the food on the menu produced from the hotel estate. An ad featured in May 1902 states Mr. Wilson's extensive gardens produce all the vegetables desired, the stream that meanders through the hotel grounds all the fish and the pools adjacent furnish the frogs.

The beeves and muttons are fattened on the rich grasses of the bottomlands, while the chickens, ducks and turkeys are brought to a high degree of perfection in their separate houses.

Milk and cream—not the milkman's product but the old-fashioned, golden tinged article—are served ad libitum and the hotel woods are full of squirrels, quail, pigeons and other wild game.

The Crittenden Springs Hotel gazebo (above) was built over sulphur springs. The gazebo was known as "The Gum." Here guests could sit and visit while drinking the medicinal water of the spring. To the left of the pavilion is the boardwalk that led to the hotel, in the background. The advertisement for the Crittenden Springs Hotel (right) appeared in the Evansville Courier Journal in 1890.

The icehouses are packed to the roof with the congealed water. One may take charming drives through a delightful countryside, with various scenes of pastoral and mining life diversified with shooting and fishing, making the days pass pleasantly.

The evenings are enlivened with music and dancing, games and tête-à-tête supper parties. The celebrated springs of sulphur, iron and lithia waters tone the system, quicken the appetite and bring a roseate color to the most listless and jaded.

The resort flourished until around 1910 when the fad and belief in the medicinal purposes of spring water began to fade, and the final demise came when the springs lost most of their bubbling waters due to the nearby mining operations.

In June 1913, the editor of The Crittenden-Record Press, Mr. S.M. Jenkins, had an editorial in the paper. It adds more history to the fascination of the Crittenden Springs Hotel. It reads: "Our Crittenden Springs hotel of a 100 rooms or more with every possible facility for caring for 250 guests at least was evidently constructed a few years too soon. With our present motor cars, well-graded roads and the heavy foliated trees along the drive, that old hollow, blue gum would now be surrounded by eager devotees of the sulphur water habit, the spacious dancing floors of the big building alive with the youth and beauty of the city and countryside, the air vibrant with the 'salute all' and the cheerful 'promenade left' or 'all hands around.'

Crittenden Springs Hotel would be besieged for accommodation from all points of the compass. Why not restore, revamp, rejuvenate this once-delightful summer resort? It's never too late to mend.

This dream never came to pass and in just over a year, in 1914, the lovely old three-story hotel was being taken down. The gazebo surrounding the once flowing sulphur spring would be taken down also, and it was in need of much repair. Some of the remains of the hotel were used to build a house on the same location.

One can't help but wonder what happened to all the lumber from the hotel, the gingerbread trim and all the beautiful furniture and furnishing that once filled the large rooms of the interior.

Sometimes it is hard to imagine that Crittenden County once had such a magnificent place as the Crittenden Springs Hotel, for we now have a few priceless pictures to look at and imagine how it was during this long ago time period in our past history.

Bechler to participate in 'Don't Text and Drive' function

STAFF REPORT

A demonstration aimed at preventing texting and driving will be held this week in Princeton. According to state Rep. Lynn Bechler (R-Marion), the "Don't Text and Drive" event, which will include an AT&T driving simulator, will be held at 9 a.m. Friday at Caldwell County High School.

Rep. Bechler will join other local and state leaders at the event.

"A recent study by Cohen Children's Medical Center found that texting while driving is the leading cause of death for drivers, with 3,000 killed and 300,000 injured," said Rep. Bechler. "While we recently increased the penalty for those charged with texting while driving, it's imperative we also educate our young drivers about the dangers of texting and driving."

Almost 54,000 crashes in Kentucky last year were related to distracted driving, including texting while driving.

In 2012, a "No Texting While Driving" law was enacted by the 2012 General Assembly.

Not knowing the real facts is destroying us

As God said of Israel in Hosea 3:6, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge. Because you have rejected knowledge, I will also reject you and your children because you have forgotten the law of your God."

It is hard for all of us to really understand any of the hell on earth our nation went through during and many years after the Civil War.

The family of my mother's father went through it. Mama told of her uncle who was a little older than her father. He had told of frightening nights when the Union soldiers would come into their home and feel over all their faces trying to find their father who had refused to fight in the Union Army, when it had overrun that part of Tennessee. When he learned four of his brothers were in the Confederate Army, he would not fight against them.

Grandpa hid in a cave in the French Broad River and Grandma would slip food to him at night in a bucket let down over the top of the cave by rope and sometimes slipping to him in a skiff at night.

A Union captain and his men came to their house one day and took all their corn, chickens and cow, leaving the large family destitute.

The only thing they did not get was a ham Grandma had hidden in the ash hopper.

She started yelling at the captain and using a few choice words, and he pried her mouth open and spit tobacco juice in it.

President Abraham Lincoln said of the horrible death and destruction going on in our nation—friends killing friends, families fighting families—"We know that by God's divine law, nations, like individuals, are subjected to punishments and chastisements in this world. We have forgotten God. We have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us, and we have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own.

Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us."

Sound familiar? Our culture that was once God-fearing, peaceful and blessed has come to the brink of destruction by forces within and without because we too have forgotten God.

America has forgotten God. There is proof all around us. The enemies of America and the Gospel of Christ—communists and Muslims—are both dedicated to destroying us and are being helped by hidden powers that are working behind the scenes, pulling the strings of many of our political leaders and putting fear in the rest.

Our people refuse to learn from the past and all the facts hidden right before our eyes. We are now doomed to repeat it.

Communists and Muslims have both infiltrated our government, and both think they are helping each other, as they did in Egypt to bring down the former president. Each think they are going to be the victors by overcoming the other.

A known fact: There are far more Muslims in the world, on every continent, than there are communists. Who do you think will win?

As we study all of Revelation, we understand the 20th chapter of symbols which tells us the end will be by the combination of pagan and false religious forces over the breadth of the whole earth surrounding God's people to do battle. The end will be fire coming down from God out of Heaven to devour the enemies.

What pagan and false religious forces are there worldwide dedicated and capable of destroying all Christians in the world and financed with our own tax dollars spent on their oil because President Obama won't let us drill our own oil?

The Islamic doctrine has always been of that mindset. When the Muslims were plundering the ships of Europe and America and killing many and selling the rest for slaves back in Thomas Jefferson's time, he and John Adams asked the ambassador from Tripoli on what grounds these outrageous acts of unbridled savagery could be justified. He answered, "(It) was founded on the laws of their prophet, that it was written in their Quran, that all nations who should not have acknowledged their authority were sinners, that it was their right and duty to make war upon them wherever they could be found, and to make slaves of all they could take as prisoners and every Musselman who should be slain in battle was sure to go to Paradise."

Again, the deadliness of the ignorance of historical facts is proven by President Bush and others saying Islam is a peaceful religion and only a few have hijacked it. Had he known historical facts, he would never have declared the silly statement "Mission Accomplished." He would have known that with them it is never over. These are facts I was taught in high school in Illinois in the 1940s.

Had he known the facts, he would also never have led our military into Iraq where thousands of lives were lost or horribly maimed. And all for what?

Again, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge."

The communists have killed millions of Christians and say there is no God and hate all religion. If the Muslims take over this nation—and for sure something terrible will take it over if millions don't repent and come to God through Jesus soon—the Muslims will give the communists the same ultimatum they give all the rest: Accept the Muslim religion, bow on your knees toward Mecca five times a day and pray to Allah or die.

Talk about poetic justice!

Having known us from the beginning, God justifies through His mercy, grace

By FELTY YODER
GUEST COLUMNIST

It was God's desire from the beginning to bring forth a spiritual people out of the natural. Therefore, he starts from the Ark of the Covenant and the Mercy Seat. Now, Christ Jesus is to be a propitiation (Mercy Seat) through faith in His blood.

We are saved by his righteousness as well as by His mercy. And it is because the blood of Christ has made us righteous.

"Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to His mercy He saved us, by the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Spirit," reads Titus 3:5.

It is at the cross that "Mercy and Truth have met together: "Righteousness and peace have kissed each other," reads Psalms 85:10.

Let us embrace the Truth He declares; not to fortify ourselves with arguments that lead to strife, but that we might enter into true rest. For surely this is why the truth has been made known.

God certainly knows everything from beginning to end. He knew us from before the foundation of the world. And now we read of certain ones "whom he did not foreknow." These He also "predestined."

This is the next phase. And it is not a frightening world. It simply means He has marked out our pathway for us to walk in. By yielding to the leading of the Holy Spirit, we are being conformed to the image of His Son. He does not change His plan because of our weakness. He takes our failures and mistakes—sins, if you will—and transforms them into stepping-stones along the pathway we are to walk in.

Once we recognize that He foreknew us and realize that the pathway has been marked out before the foundation of the world, then we know his calling wasn't just a mere invitation. We know for sure that his calling is a creative world, like when He called light to come out of darkness.

Being justified is something we become aware of as we embrace Jesus Christ as our Savior and walk in the pathway of righteousness. We are inclined to think it all started here. But it all started back from the foundation of the world in the heart of God.

He says He has glorified us. This is yet to come. It is here used in the aorist tense in the Greek, which indicates an action in the past or an action in the future that is sure to come to pass. God is speaking from the Holy of Holies, as He sees the end from the beginning. He is looking at the finished product.

Let us not be quick to judge our brother if he doesn't understand things quite the same way we do or if he sees some aspects of truth in a somewhat different light than we. For it is very probable that neither of us has come anywhere close to comprehending the truth in its totality.

(Felty Yoder is a resident of the Salem community and has lived with his family in the area for two decades.)

True joy found in following God's will

By JOEY DURHAM
GUEST COLUMNIST

I want to bring a devotion to your heart today on the subject of true joy. We will take our text from John 15:11 where we read, "These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full."

The Lord Jesus desired that His disciples and all believers who came after them, would be filled with joy. The setting of our text just adds to the meaning here. The Lord was walking with His disciples to the garden of Gethsemane where Judas would betray Him.

So the joy of which Jesus speaks here is a joy that is not affected by external circumstances. It is the deep, abiding peace and contentment within the soul that comes when our heart is right with God and we are living in His will.

In today's society, we are inclined to associate joy with laughter, amusements, good health and material possessions. Then, tragically, when these circumstances change, many find themselves depressed and filled with despair, even to the point of thinking there is nothing worth living for.

The Apostle Paul is an example of what true joy looks like in the heart and life of a Christian. The Apostle Paul

Local health center goes to same-day scheduling

The Pennyryle District Health Department last week announced the implementation of same-day scheduling at their Crittenden, Livingston, Caldwell, Lyon and Trigg County health centers effective Tuesday.

This means clients will no longer have to make appointments in advance; instead, they can call or walk into the health department on the day of their choosing and get an appointment the same day.

"This will be a great benefit to our clients," said Allison Beshear, public health director. "We have many clients who in the past have had to adjust their work schedules or arrange for transportation to come to an appointment. Now the clients can come when it is convenient for them."

While the change in scheduling is primarily driven by improving the experience for clients, the health department also expects to see benefits for their staff as well.

"We have historically had a high no-show rate for appointments in all our health centers," said Beshear. "We typically have seen no-show rates in the 40 to 60 percent range in any given month," said Beshear.

Some Kentucky health departments have made the switch to same-day scheduling and now see no-show rates of 1 to 7 percent.

"In today's budget climate, that translates to a much more efficient use of resources," said Beshear.

Beshear stressed that for clients to have the best chance of getting the appointment they desire, they should call the appointment line first thing in the morning or walk in when the doors open at 8 a.m. The appointment line for Crittenden County is 965-5215. In Livingston County, call 928-2193 and in Caldwell, dial 365-6571.

When clients have completed their visit and need to return for follow-up, they will be given a reminder card telling them an approximate date for them to call for their same-day appointment.

Arguments are part of normal family life

What family doesn't have arguments now and then? Arguing is a normal part of family life. It is good for children to feel that their ideas are taken seriously, even if adults do not agree with them.

To keep arguments helpful, adults need to set a few ground rules before a conflict arises. For example, the discussion must be under

Nancy Hunt
UK Extension
Family & Consumer
Sciences Agent

control, respectful and moving toward solving the issue. Name-calling, shouting and saying the same thing over and over are not useful and should signal an end to the argument until people cool off. Here are other guidelines for productive discussions:

- Keep the negatives to a minimum. It is too easy to damage self-esteem.
- Pick your battles carefully. Not all battles are worth fighting.

- Be open. Let your child win sometimes. When she presents a case you can accept, be willing to say, "You have convinced me. We'll do it your way." Your child will feel that you value her. She will see that she can help conflicts get resolved and that sometimes she can win.
- Take a hard look at the root causes of conflicts that come up again and again. Do you and your child together need to draw up a contract to make sure homework or chores get done on time?

- Examine which family member you tend to side with in three-way arguments. Are you being fair in your relationships? Does one member of the family intend to make you angry?

Try to find ways to change the family dynamics toward a win-win situation more of the time.

Children learn by example, that is, by watching how you solve family problems. Do you and your partner have arguments that arrive at solutions?

You are your child's most important teacher, from infancy through adolescence.

It's a great opportunity for individuals who manage a home business to receive more exposure to area clientele.

The Shoppe on Walker Street vendor show will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Oct. 19 at the Crittenden County Senior Citizens Center at 210 N. Walker St. in Marion. Easley family holds reunion

STAFF REPORT

The Easleys of Crittenden County, according to Lucy Easley Tedrick, are all descendants of William H. Easley, who migrated to western Kentucky in the early 1800s from Stokes County, N.C., before Crittenden County was formed. William Easley was a descendant of Robert O. Easley who immigrated to America in 1640, said Tedrick.

Al Easley, who was killed on Easley's Curve on Ky. 91 North in 1934, was one of William Easley's sons and had a family of 17 children—four by his first wife, Lucy Woody Easley, who died soon after the fourth child was born, and 13 by his second wife, Minnie Underdown Easley. Two of those 13 children died as infants.

In 1955, all of Al Easley's 15 surviving children met for a reunion along with Minnie Underdown Easley, Al's second wife who raised all 15 to adulthood. The children were, Lyle, Virginia, Woody and Leroy, Gladys, Robert, Minnie, their mother, James Alfred, Bonnie, Gleaford, Lula, Willard, Lucy, Harry and Wanda. Seen in bottom photo, the seven youngest of Al and Minnie Underdown Easley's children met at Lucy Tedrick's home in Marion on July 19 to celebrate Tedrick's 84th birthday. Pictured are (standing, from left) Bonnie, Lula, Lucy, Wanda, (sitting) Gleaford, Willard and Harry.

CCES construction cancels this year's PTO fall festival

STAFF REPORT

Ongoing construction and renovation at Crittenden County Elementary School has forced the cancellation of this year's PTO fall festival. CCES Principal Melissa Tabor said hosting the event on the school's campus was not feasible this year, citing safety concerns due to ongoing construction and remodeling.

Currently there aren't any plans to move the festival to another facility in the school district.

PTO president Jessi Champion said other events to replace the festival have been discussed, including a golf tournament to be held in the fall. Champion said nothing has been scheduled at this time and any event would have to have approval from the board of education.

Champion also said there is a possibility of having a spring fling at the elementary school in lieu of a fall festival. However, she indicated the possibility of hosting the event at the school would depend on when construction is complete.

MCC goes smoke free

STAFF REPORT

Madisonville Community College (MCC) has announced that the Health Sciences campus located at 750 North Laffoon St. in Madisonville is a smoke-free/tobacco-free campus.

Following the trend of local restaurants and businesses, officials said MCC is committed to providing its students, employees and visitors with a safe and healthy environment.

Other factors in the policy implementation included litter from tobacco products, exposure to second-hand smoke at building entrances and exits and the desire to ensure clean air for all students who attend the college.

Dove season Sunday
Kentucky's dove season opens at 11 a.m., Sunday and hunters can shoot until sunset. After opening day, dove hunting is from sunrise to sunset.

"I think it is going to be a good season, despite all the wet weather," said Rocky Pritchert, migratory bird coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "Doves are abundant this year."
Daily bag limit remains 15 doves. The first two weeks of dove season see the highest participation from hunters, but not necessarily the best hunting.
"Traditionally, dove season was the first thing to come in," Pritchert said. "Hunters will hunt hard for the first couple of weeks; then other seasons come in such as deer or early wood duck." Dove hunters who want the fields for themselves should continue to hunt after the initial rush, especially this year. Those who can gain permission to hunt silage fields just after their harvest may see more doves than on opening day. "The silage is going to be late," Pritchert said. "It is not browning at all from what I've seen. I saw some browning silage in west Kentucky, but overall it is still green and healthy." When farmers cut those silage fields to fill their silos, they leave waste grains on the fields. Doves flock to them. Dove hunters must have a valid Kentucky hunting license along with either a Kentucky Migratory Bird Permit or a Kentucky Waterfowl Permit before taking the field.

Rocket golfers win Class A Region

STAFF REPORT

Rocket golf coach Blair Winders said before the season started that everything was in line for his squad to capture a Class A regional championship.

On Saturday, that's exactly what the Rocket golfers did at Salem's Deer Lakes Golf Course.

Six Crittenden County golfers have qualified for the Class A State Tournament Sept. 7 at Somerset. They are the top five boys, who won last week's Second Region Class A Tournament, Cameron McDaniel, Devin Belt, Aaron Owen, Colby Watson and Cole Foster. Lady Rocket golfer Kayla Davis also qualified for the state tournament in her first season with the golf team.

■ On Monday, Aug. 19 at Boots Randolph Golf Course in Cadiz, the Rockets finished second behind host Trigg County. Teams were as follows: Trigg 153, Crittenden 169, Livingston 190 and Lyon, which did not have enough to record a team score. Individually Cameron McDaniel shot a 39, Aaron Owen 41, Devin Belt 44, Colby Watson 45 and Cole Foster 56 for the boys. For the girls, scores were Kayla Davis 53 and Lauren Gilchrist 59.

■ Owen was medalist and Lauren Gilchrist was co-medalist Tuesday.

Rockets manhandle Bulldogs in opener

STAFF REPORT

With its head coach in the hospital recovering from surgery, Crittenden County's football team pounded Fulton City 35-6 Friday on the road in the season opener.

Junior running back Lane Wallace, in his first start at halfback, rushed for 151 yards and brace-mate Dylan Hollis, a sophomore, rushed for 96.

The Rockets overcame some early miscues and led 7-0 at the half. After fumbling at the Fulton seven-yard line to open the third period, Crittenden rebounded and reeled off four straight rushing touchdowns over the next 14 minutes. Two Fulton fumbles helped turn the tide for Crittenden.

The Rockets were playing without head coach Al Starnes for the first time in 256 games over 22 years. The skipper underwent surgery last week to remove cancer from his colon. He will probably be in the pressbox for this week's game with Hopkins Central (0-1).

At Fulton, Junior Noah Dickerson outjumped triple coverage to put the Rockets ahead late in the first period, catching a touchdown pass from senior QB Travis Gilbert. Micah Hollaman, the team's record-setting kicker, nailed all five point-after attempts during the game.

Hollamon lined up for a 26-yard field goal attempt in the final seconds of the first half, but a high snap got away from the holder, leaving the Rockets clinging to a tenuous one-touchdown lead at the break.

After the half, Crittenden drove down field on its first possession behind two long Hollis runs, but a fumbled snap at the seven stalled the drive. After the turnover, Fulton was able to generate nothing offensively and punted, giving the Rockets a short field where it began the onslaught. Hollis scored the first rushing TD on a 29-yard run, then after he recovered a Fulton fumble on the ensuring kickoff, Wallace put the Rockets up three touchdowns with a scoring run.

"It was closer than it should have been at halftime, but in the second half our front five on the OL took over the game," said acting head coach Jeremy Wheeler.

Freshman Maeson Myers and Wallace tacked on a couple more fourth-quarter rushing touchdowns in the Rockets' new wishbone attack that generated 318 yards on the ground.

Fulton managed to score late against the Rocket reserves on a long pass. Otherwise, the Bulldogs were no match for Crittenden's swarming defense. The hosts gained just 52 yards on the ground and besides the long scoring pass managed only 42 receiving yards.

Wheeler said linebacker/nose guard Zach Tinsley had a superb game as did the rest of the defensive unit. Tinsley had five solo tackles to lead the defense.

With Starnes out, Wheeler, who is the normal defensive coordinator, was in charge of the team and assistant Jared Brown called the offense.

The Rockets will host their annual National Guard Warrior Bowl this weekend. On Friday, Crittenden County plays Hopkins Central, which lost last week to Webster County. The Storm is coached by Marion native Marshal Enoch.

Caldwell County, the No. 1 team in Class A, takes on Union County in Saturday's second bowl game. The bowl is co-sponsored by Marion Eye Care Center.

CCHS FALL SPORTS ROUNDUP

Volleyball girls beat Webster County twice

Crittenden County's volleyball team won one of four games over the week-end at the Lady Cardinal Classic in Smithland.

The Lady Rockets beat Webster County for the second time this season, outscoring the Trojan girls 21-9, 23-21 in straight sets. The tournament format was best of three sets.

Crittenden lost to Trigg County 11-21, 21-18, 15-4 in the tournament opener then took Union County to the match limit before losing 24-22, 13-21, 15-6. Hopkinsville jumped on Crittenden early in the final match but the Rocket girls battled back in the final set before losing 21-7, 21-19.

In other matches last week, Crittenden County:

- Lost to Union County Tuesday, Aug. 20 in straight sets 25-17, 25-20, 25-23.

- Beat Webster County in straight sets on Thursday 25-13, 25-21, 25-17. Coach Carol West said her team played very well.

"We won with aces and digs. We made 53 out of 67 serves and 31 of them were aces," the coach said. "Britney Buell and Erin McDonald led the way in aces. Abby Whitney and Haylee Young backed them up with successful serves."

Sitar's goal doesn't hold against Lady Trojans

Crittenden County's soccer team jumped on top of Webster County 1-0 Monday night on a goal by Margaret Sitar, but the Lady Trojans answered quickly and decisively.

"Once they broke our defense down, we couldn't keep it out of the middle and they started scoring," Lady Rocket coach Ken Geary said.

Geary said his team was a bit handicapped, playing without starting forward Nikki Shuecraft and Jesalyn Duncan, another offensive threat.

Crittenden held Webster scoreless for about 10 minutes before the Lady Trojans began breaching the defense and finished with a 7-1 victory.

According to its team statistics, Crittenden had five shots on goal and 16 goalie saves during the contest.

The Lady Rockets lost 4-0 last Tuesday at Union County despite having 10 shots on goal. Crittenden's keepers, Alexis Tabor and Marie Riley, combined for 17 saves.

CCMS plays at Murray St.

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County Middle School's football team will play Murray Middle School at 11 a.m., Saturday at Murray State's Roy Stewart Stadium.

The coaches said it will be a great experience for the middle school players to perform on a collegiate football field. The Rockets are playing as part of a four-game set on Saturday on the college campus.

Crittenden lost its season opener a couple of weeks ago at Trigg County. A couple of penalties at key times helped the host Wildcats pull off an 18-6 victory.

Crittenden trailed 12-0 at the half then 18-0 before scoring in the fourth quarter to cut the Wildcats' lead to 12 points.

Coach Denis Hodge said the team is playing well and the boys have a strong football intellect, which indicates they've had good coaching at previous levels.

Crittenden County's Alexis Tabor battles for possession of the ball during a recent varsity soccer game at Marion-Crittenden County Park. The girls will be back in action Saturday morning at Christian County.

College, career readiness focus of next week at Crittenden middle, high schools

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County school officials want to encourage students that the sky is the limit when it comes to their post-secondary educational and career opportunities. All next week, each school will celebrate College and Career Readiness Week. The purpose is to have students explore college and career options and instill awareness in students about those options as early as elementary school.

Beginning Tuesday, different college and military recruiters will be on site for middle and high school students during their lunch shifts. The recruiters will have information stations and be available to speak with students and answer questions.

Next Wednesday, Dr. Judith Rhoads, president of Madisonville Community College, will visit the elementary school and speak with third-, fourth- and fifth-grade classrooms about the importance of college readiness.

On Sept. 6, community members, business leaders and their employees are asked to participate in College Shirt Day. Community members are encouraged to wear their college T-shirts in collaboration with College Shirt Day at the high school. Individuals who participate are asked to take photos of themselves and their employees or teams wearing their T-shirts and e-mail them to Holly White, community education director at holly.white@crittenden.kyschools.us.

Photos need to be received by 10 a.m. that morning. White will then bring prizes to participants. Photos will be used on the school website and for other promotions.

Both Crittenden County middle and high schools also have themed events planned each day next week.

Tuesday is Dress the Part Day, which allows students to dress in attire suited for their future careers. In addition to Marine and Army recruiters, officials from Brescia and Western Kentucky universities will be on campus to speak with students.

Next Wednesday, both schools will celebrate College Hat Day. Recruiters from the Air Force and officials from Campbellsville University and Madisonville Community College will be available to speak with students.

College Spirit Day is scheduled for next Thursday. Students can wear face paint and dress like a college mascot. Navy recruiters and representatives from Murray State University and the University of Kentucky will also be on site.

On Sept. 6, students and community members are encouraged to wear their favorite college T-shirts. Recruiters from the Army National Guard and representatives from Morehead State University will be available to speak with students.

Crittenden County High School Guidance Counselor Stefanie Shoulders said the list of college representatives is not complete and expects more officials from additional colleges to be on campus during the week. She said the goal is to provide students with as much information as possible as they think about their college and career options.

"We want to make them aware of post-secondary opportunities and to encourage them to take advantage of those offers," she said.
